Prayer of the Week

O God, help me to detach myself from the need to acquire too much of what this world has to offer. Tame my fickle heart so that I redirect my energies toward acquiring that true treasure that You have in store for me. When I am caught up in the bustle of the moment and choose to focus on the temporal things that demand my attention, slow my racing mind to consider You...my true Master. Bless my efforts to be a loyal servant, a servant who always keeps a light aglow in a heart that eagerly awaits You. Through our Lord Jesus Christ, Your Son, Who lives and reigns with You in the unity of the Holy Spirit, one God, forever and ever.

This Thursday we celebrate the Assumption of the Blessed Virgin Mary. On this day, Mary was assumed body and soul into Heaven. Throughout the day, let us contemplate Mary, the Queen of Heaven. Think of her beautiful simplicity, her gentleness, humility, wisdom, and selflessness. What a wonderful day to pray the Rosary!

August

Living our faith: being “faithful and prudent stewards”

Saint Luke’s Gospel tells us, “Much will be required of the person entrusted with much, and still more will be demanded of the person entrusted with more.” I think that we are mistaken if we think of the “much” and the “more” as referring solely to money; it does make sense, however, to assume that those with wealth have a greater responsibility to give more than those whose bank accounts are not as full. We do better to think of the other gifts we possess, namely, the gifts of time and talent. Perhaps we think that humility doesn’t lend itself to an honest appraisal of our gifts. Not so! A truly humble person recognizes his/her gifts and acknowledges that they come from God and ought to be shared. Each of us has gifts that can bring happiness to others or serve to lighten their burdens.

Do we delay the sharing? Do we put off using our time and talents until the children are out of school or until we retire? True, we can all find matters that we deem to have greater immediacy, chores that find a top spot on our to-do lists. When we think about acts of charity, we should realize that our charitable deeds need not be grandiose or occupy a great amount of time. One phone call a week to a person who lives alone or a personal note or greeting card sent to someone who needs companionship does not require much expense of energy or time. Putting extra food items in our shopping cart and taking them to a food pantry doesn’t require much expenditure of money or time.

Nowadays we hear much talk of planning for our financial futures, creating emergency funds, and making preparations for the “hour we do not expect.” Such concerns are necessary and are made with the welfare of loved ones in mind. That being said, we also do not want to be spiritually unprepared when we are called to our heavenly home. After all, chances are we won’t be holding a bank statement when the Son of Man finally comes! Today’s gospel prompts us to discover our true treasure and to let our heart direct how and when it will be used.

It’s that time of year again! We are preparing for the opening of our annual summer bazaar, which starts on Wednesday, Aug. 21. If you are a screened volunteer and would like to help out, please call the rectory office and give your name.

May our Merciful Lord grant them healing.

Reflection: Am I waiting for the “right” time to become a good steward? Do I plan to share my time and talents “later?” Today’s Gospel warns against procrastinating. We are encouraged to be prepared... “at an hour you do not expect, the Son of Man will come.” Let us pray, that as thankful stewards, we strive to be not only generous givers, but also gracious recipients.
