Mt 23:1-12

We acknowledge God as the Source of all that we are and all that we have. We thank Him daily for the gift of life and for the personal gifts and talents that He has given us. Thanking God should be our first and last thought each day. Throughout the day, we turn to God to guide us through difficult moments: "God, see me through this." We seek His wisdom in our interpersonal relationships: "God, may my love for You be evident in my dealings with all whom I meet today." We thank Him for the blessings He showers on us each day: "God, may I use Your many blessings to grace the lives of others today."

You shall love your neighbor
as yourself.
Matthew 22:39

We place our trust in the Lord.

As the month of October draws to a close, the message of respect for life in all of its seasons or stages continues to resonate. From conception to natural death, life is precious and is to be respected. We pray to God, the giver of life, and ask for the grace and wisdom needed to manage those times when pain and hardship may make life seem to be less than beautiful. Life is always beautiful when we put God at its center. By doing so, we can face each life experience with faith, hope, and love.

Through our words and actions, may we daily show our respect for all human life...from conception to natural death.

Thursday, November 2,
All Souls Day

This is a day for us to remember those in our personal life history who have died. A beautiful way to remember our deceased family members and friends is to offer their names in the Mass celebrated on All Souls Day. Bear in mind that visiting the cemetery and praying for the dead are ways of living one of the Corporal Works of Mercy. If you do not have an All Souls Day envelope, write All Souls Day on a plain white envelope and list the names of the deceased on the front.
